Matthams Daily's New Chief Editor

MacLeod Named Managing Editor of College Newspaper

PATERSON IS NEW SPORTING EDITOR

Carroll Appointed To News Editor's Position — All Promotions Ratified By Students' Executive Council — New Appointees Have Had Considerable Experience On Staff Of McGill Daily — Associate Editors Previously Appointed.

Phil Matthams, B.A., student of theology will be editor-in-chief of McGill Daily for the session 1929-30. Colin M. MacLeod, Med. '32 will be next session's managing editor and John Ross Paterson, Arts '29, who contemplates the study of law will be sports editor of the 19th volume of the college newspaper, according to an announcement made last night by the retiring managing board of the Daily. These men will constitute the managing board of the Daily for next year and their appointment has received the ratification of the Students' Executive Council.

Lovell Caverhill Carroll, Arts '29, who will return next year to study law has been appointed news editor of the Daily and will thereby occupy the ranking position on the Board of Associate Editors.

Matthams, who succeeds John Surman Smith as editor of the Daily has served four years on the undergraduate newspaper. He joined the staff during his first year at the University covering general news and special sports news. At the end of his second year he was made an associate editor with special duties in the sports department. (Continued on page four)

Approve Change Cafeteria Plan

Financial Report Shows Successful Year

Formal approval was given to arrangements concerning the cafeteria made by the Union House committee, at the Student Council meeting yesterday. The arrangement with Mr. Cordner, of Cordner's Limited, calls for management to pass into his hands next Monday. He will direct the cafeteria for the rest of the session, during which time he will study the organization preparatory to handling the enterprise on a revised scale next year.

Cafeteria returns as reported by Persk, who has been in charge of the closing event of the Revue season, showed a profit of about four hundred dollars, thus bringing the total revenue of the Red and White Revue up to about $1200. A vote of thanks was voted to Persk for his work in this connection.

Daily appointments to the Managing Board of next year were approved as submitted (the announcement of these appointments appear in a separate column).

A financial statement was outlined by Mr. Fletcher, the figures of which were only approximate as the totals will only be known at the end of the year.

According to expectations, the Council will emerge at the end of the year with a surplus of approximately $1000. This figure is largely due to the unexpected profits shown by the Players' Club. The Red and White Revue contributed $1200, the Daily about $600, the Annual is expected to add $500, and the box exchange $140. All these are monies that were more or less reckoned on, but the Players' Club made the unexpected showing of a profit of $900. The showing of the Society was considered to be a most creditable showing, and an outstanding instance of what may be done by a production that is staged within the University itself.

Dr. C. F. Cori On Adrenaline In Metabolism

Dr. Carl F. Cori, noted biological chemist of the State Institute for the Study of Malignant Disease, is arriving in the city today to address an open meeting of the Alpha Omega Alpha Honorary Medical Society at 8:30 P.M. in the Medical Building. This meeting will be held jointly with a special meeting of the McGill Medical Society and it is open to all students, members of the teaching staff, local practitioners and any others interested.

Dr. Cori has unusual and interesting views on the manner in which adrenaline acts in the body, especially on its effects on carbohydrate metabolism. His ideas are sufficiently striking that he was recently requested to lecture on his subject before the Harvey Society of New York. We are honoured by his visit to McGill. He will take as his subject for this evening, "The Influence of Adrenaline on Carbohydrate Metabolism."

Debating Union Hold Elections At Last Meeting Of Season

The McGill Debating Union Society closed a very successful year with their annual meeting held yesterday. The Vice-president's report was read and elections for the coming session were made. Col. Bovey has been returned to the position of Honorary President.

The meeting opened with a speech by the retiring president Bernard Alexandor who called upon the Vice-president to read the report of the year now ended.

Elections were held to fill the major offices, those returned were A. M. Klein as secretary and H. B. Lande as treasurer. Mr. Collard, Lovell Caverhill Carroll, David Lewis, and Kenneth G. Baker were elected to the standing committee.

In the Vice-president's report, Philip Foran pointed out that the executive had been faced with a great problem at the beginning of the year, namely to interest the student body. The following policy was adopted to this end.

The Union entered into a well planned advertising campaign. This was achieved by the means of posters, notices, the local press and the McGill Daily.

The committee decided to return to the old style mock parliaments to interest the student body. The ordinary type of debate seemed to have grown boring to a great number of students. The mock parliament produced results that left little to be desired. It was then decided to hold debates in a style similar to those now popular in Oxford and Cambridge. It is expected that this will be continued next year.

The executive attempted to find subjects for debate of sufficient interest to arouse controversy and so increase the attendance.

The policy of having outside speakers was one that met with great success. Several famous speakers debated and the meetings were well attended both by students and outside people. This policy also will be continued.

Some thirty freshmen took part in the annual freshman speaking contest for a shield donated by Col. Bovey. The winner was K. G. Baker, now on the standing committee.

Several home debates took place, but the intercollegiate field held the main interest.

In the preliminary debates McGill won against both McMaster and Queens. By defeating Osgoode Hall, the championship was brought to McGill this year for the first time since the inception of the League.

At Medical Society

Dr. Wilfred Derome, medico-legal expert of the city of Montreal, will discuss the aspects of medico-legal work and how to detect criminals at the next meeting of the Medical Undergraduate Society on April 2. The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides. Dr. Derome is very well known for the splendid results which he has achieved in his laboratory, and merits a large turnout of the members of the Society.

Superstitious Beliefs Formerly Ruled In Field Of Medicine

"Education is the vaccination against superstition, but this does not always take," stated Dr. A. Grant Flemming in his address on "The Periodic Health Examination," last evening in the Mechanics Institute. Progress is this great question not only depends on the League Group but on the individuals of the community interested.

Knowledge for this work is needed, but this knowledge must also be used advantageously. This great work began in England and it is mainly due to the group of people under the leadership of Edmund Chadwick that it became a success.

The field of medicine from the earliest stages has been great and varied. In the first era superstition ruled, such as witchcraft, influence of the evil eye and the superstition about the stars. These beliefs lasted for a long time, for even in the time of Oliver Cromwell witchcraft held sway. All races regarded individuals who only possessed one eye as evil beings who cast spells on their unfortunate countrymen. Samuel Johnson tells how when he was a little child he was touched by the hand of Queen Elizabeth in the hope of being cured for an eye malady, he adds furthermore that up till the time of his death he suffered with this eye malady.

Knowledge Lacking

In these early days many people suffered and died because of lack of knowledge of the disease and also the methods of curing them. Even when important discoveries were made people did not make the best use of them and as quoted by Dr. Flemming "Persons not the things (Diseases) were dangerous."

Will Receive Bronze Medals

Arts '30 To Debate Birth Control

Bronze medals will be awarded by Lord Macdonald, President of the Junior Year, to the winners of the final debate of the Arts '30 Debating Society, which will take place on Monday, March 25, at four o'clock in Room 79 of the Arts Building. The motion, "Resolved that this Society favors Birth Control" will be defended by K. E. Norris and T. E. Dancey, while H. H. Harris and N. W. Morton will support the negative.

Nine teams entered into competition this year for the medals which are to be awarded, and all except these last two have been eliminated in the preliminary and semi-final debates. Arts '29 has supported the Society faithfully, there having been good turnouts at most of the debates. Members of the Law Faculty, the Graduate School and others have kindly acted as judges, and have given their decisions very competently.

The subject which has been chosen for discussion is one which is of great contemporary interest, and many books have been written on it from both sides of the question. At the present time, birth control is not illegal, but some of the churches have laid a definite ban upon it. The debate next Monday should be interesting and enlightening, and it is expected that there will be many present to hear it.

Choral Society Meet Tuesday

The annual meeting of the Operatic and Choral Society will be held on Tuesday evening, March 26, in Strathcona Hall at 8 o'clock.

This meeting will end the activities of the Society for the season. This year the Operatic and Choral Society has enjoyed exceptional success and has been one of the most active societies on the campus.

The general business of the Society for the year will be wound up and the officers for next year will be elected.

New Officers Of Economics Club Will Be Elected

The McGill Political Economy Club holds its last meeting of the current session today at 1 p.m. in Room 41 of the Arts Building, when the officers for the next year will be elected. As the Club has experienced unprecedented popularity during the last seven months the meeting should be a lively one.

A president and vice-president must be chosen from the third year honor students in Economics and Political Science, while the secretary and treasurer are to be selected from full honor students in the second year.

All students taking a course in Economics or Political Science are entitled to vote so that the meeting is open to several hundred students in Arts and Commerce.

The President, Don Barr of Arts '29 will be in the chair.

Prohibition Impractical

Lewis And Goodman Win Championship

Resolution Successfully Defended Against Tough And Fulford

David Lewis and Samuel J. Goodman are winners of the class debating championship of Arts '31 as a result of their successful defense of the resolution, "That prohibition of liquor is indefensible in principle and impractical," at the final meeting of the society yesterday. D. Tough and L. Fulford were the losers. The successful debaters were recipients of silver cups, bought with money collected from the class. A. Gordon Nairn and Philip Foran, acted as judges.

"Prohibition does away with all possible education of the people, to show them the harmfulness of drinking," stated Lewis. Temperance means drinking in moderation, based on individual education. Prohibition is an artificial measure, where the government tries to do away with the manufacture, sale, transportation, etc. of alcoholic beverages. There is no abstract speculation needed; the experiment of prohibition of this kind has been tried in the United States and Finland. Lewis read the wording of the 18th amendment to support his definition of prohibition. Such extreme measures violate the right of equal rights for rich and poor. They only promote corruption, illegality and opposition to the law. "Forbidden fruit is sweet."

Fulford described Canada as "an oasis in the great American desert." The state owes it to society to control drinking of alcoholic beverages. Psychologically, such unrestricted conditions are antagonistic to the instincts of self-preservation, workmanship, self-respect, and home-making. "Canada is the most temperate country in the world," assured Goodman, second member of the affirmative. Prohibition is one of the worst ways of trying to stop drinking in excess; other systems are much more laudable and effective. Goodman showed a map prepared by an Attorney General of the United States, on which were indicated the "wet" and "dry" districts of the country. For example, in percent of "wetness," New York State was 95, California 90, and Massachusetts 75. From re- (Continued on page two)

The members of the Montreal Newfoundland Society will join the McGill Club on this occasion, and the most enjoyable experiences which have been indulged in former years are anticipated for this event.

The President, F. W. Fitzgerald, will be the chairman, and following the banquet and the address election of officers for the coming year will be held.

Latham Speaks On Teaching Of English Tongue

Outsiders Have Little Regard For Our Language

DIOCESAN COLLEGE

Speaker Discussed Such Aspects As Spelling Slang And Good Usage

Professor Latham, who was the guest of the Montreal Diocesan Theological College last night, gave a short address entitled "The Teaching of English, on the Worm Turns." He said that all his associates outside the English department had very definite ideas on how English ought to be taught, and the instructors of English alone seemed to find their work difficult. But opinions on the subject were varied. He found that bad spelling and the split infinitive were considered by science instructors to be the only obstacles to the writing of good English. Law professors complained of the poor English written by men who had forsaken the Faculty of Arts. They failed to realize that a man who wished to learn good English would in many cases, have to be removed from his home, his associates and his instructors. Such a Utopian state of affairs was never achieved.

It was an unfortunate fact that before a man could be said to write good English he must be able to spell with reasonable accuracy. It was only since the production of Johnson's dictionary that any definite standard had been set up. Before that time men spent much as they pleased. The manuscripts of Milton's works in the library showed that in his day a word might be spelt in several different ways. Now, however, there was not much room for variation. Misspelled words offended the reader so that, though accurate spelling seemed a hindrance to progress, it had to be acquired.

The works of classical writers, of Chaucer, and of Shakespeare all contained many examples of slang. It indicated a desire to kick over the traces. To-day slang led its users to replace the words "head" and "man" with more striking expressions. In the (Continued on page four)

Canada's Status Is Topic Sunday

Foran To Address Last Meeting Of L. of N. Club

The ninth and final sessional meeting of the McGill League of Nations Club will be addressed by P. E. Foran on the subject of "Canada in the World today." The meeting will take place next Sunday, March 24, at 7:30 o'clock in the S.C.A. room of Strathcona Hall, and is the annual one allotted to the consideration of the international status of the Dominion.

At the close of the meeting, the election of officers for the coming season will be held.

For Canada, the year has been an active one in external affairs, and business developments with the West Indies and South America have stimulated broader scope. As likewise did Premier King's recent visit to Geneva and other centres. The Canadian diplomatic corps was magnified by the addition of Canadian envoys to Japan and France to join the political incumbent already installed at Washington. Moreover, Great Britain has established a Special Charge d'Affaires at Ottawa.

The Kellogg Treaty, Anglo-American Arbitration revision, Radio Wave-length allotment and Prohibition enforcement conferences are included in the foreign department's activities of the past year. Notwithstanding these important events, the international status of Canada is still in an amorphous state, the last Imperial Conference having thrown open the doors for endless new adjustments.

It may be of news to most people that Canada is still at war with Turkey, as no peace treaty has as yet been signed with the Ottoman Republic, and it is expected that Foran will go into this aspect in detail. Foran will also discuss the practical powers of Canada both within and without the British Empire.

At the conclusion of P.E. Foran's address the meeting will be thrown open for discussion after which refreshments will be served. The usual invitation is extended to all interested students, for this final meeting.

Philosophers On Unity Of Mind, Tuesday

The next meeting of the Philosophical Society will be held on Tuesday, May the 26th, at 8 P.M. in the Reading Room of the Arts Building.

The meeting will be held in the form of an open discussion on the subject of "The Unity and Persistence of Mind." Roger W. Gough and Robert Pursley will lead the discussion, the former taking the first phase, and the latter the second phase, of the subject.

The Executive wish to bring to the attention of all members the fact that this meeting will be the last for this Session. Accordingly, all members are requested to be sure to be present in order that an executive may be elected for the Session 1929-1930.

All the meetings of the Philosophical Society for this Session have been exceptionally well attended, doubtless due to the high quality of the subjects dealt with by the different speakers. There is every reason to believe that this next meeting will be of as high a calibre as the previous meetings.

The Executive extend a warm welcome to all students who would like to attend.

Martin Estall Cables Conditional Acceptance Of Position As S.C.A. Head

The place of the Student Christian Association as a centre in the university where the thought from all departments may be brought together and interpreted in the light of the teachings of Christ, and sent back in a co-ordinated form to the campus, was emphasized by Dr. Lynn Harold Hough in his address last night at the annual meeting of the Association in Strathcona Hall. The meeting took the form of a supper at which about one hundred and twenty men and women students and friends of the Movement were present.

Before Dr. Hough's address, the officers of both the men's and women's organizations read their reports for the year. Muriel Ball, President of the S.C.A. of R.V.C., after giving her report, read the nominations for next year's cabinet, and they were declared elected. Martine Tennant, Arts '30 is to be the new president.

Mrs. Jean Hutchison, women's part-time secretary, who is leaving McGill and moving to Toronto, was presented with a fine silver tray as a token of the esteem in which her friends at McGill hold her.

Mr. "Chuck" Stewart, General Secretary of the Association read his report of the activities of the organization, recalling the various types of successful meetings and groups which have been held during the session. Art. Watter then read the nominations which the retiring Board have made for next year's officers. The Board sent a cable to Martyn Estall, who was a leading member of the S.C.A. until he left McGill temporarily last year to make a round-the-world tour, asking him to accept the presidency next year. MONTREAL, FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1929.

Opinions expressed below are those of the Managing Board of McGill Daily; they are not official opinions of the Students' Society.

NEARING THE END

Matters of pressing importance not unconnected with examination rooms are beginning to attract a belated attention from the editorial board of this paper. With a sigh of relief, and, withal, a feeling reluctance, we lay down the editorial typewriter to devote our time for the rest of the session to those subjects so dear to the hearts (when present) of examiners, and unfortunately so far removed from the sphere of newspaper activities.

We have been able to reflect in the pages of the Daily during the year a season of student activities that may be called successful—a good average year. Interest in student affairs damned as dying during the early part of the term, revived sufficiently to confound the prophets and enable the president of the Society to present his annual report without any qualms as to the success of his regime.

To the retiring president of the Society the students owe a vote of thanks for the time and effort he has put into the duties of his office. The incoming president will find much of his work clearly laid out for him, although the horizon is already cloudy with approaching problems.

To the incoming editorial board of this paper we extend our best wishes in the belief that under them the paper will have the most successful of eighteen years of effort. Many experiments that have been under fire have been proved out, and the organization is, we feel, in a condition that justify high expectations. Concerning the constitutional changes in the paper, opinions that have reached us on the matter from other Universities have been very laudatory to the University and the Students' Council. While we do not think that there will be any great change in the matter of the editorial column, it should give an increased seriousness to opinions expressed therein.

The paper will make one more appearance next month to speed the graduating and to console the others. Till then we make our adieux.

DECENTRALISATION

Some attention has been given recently to the new policy of 'decentralisation.' A few years ago much attention was directed to the policy of 'centralisation,' and a very successful president of the Council did a lasting work in promoting organisation with this centralisation as a basis.

One would naturally wonder if this principle had shown itself to be a failure or not. Paradoxical as it may seem, the truth of the matter seems to be that both are right in their own way. The difference lies in the fact that the application is different.

It has been a proven fact that there must be a centralisation of financial control, and a general correlation of effort through a single central body if the best interests of the students are to be guarded. The fact that there is this control has another bearing, that it permits of larger and more ambitious undertakings on the part of subsidiary organisations than they could otherwise undertake. It enables the resources of all of the societies to be mobilised at the point where they will, for the minute, be most useful.

The principle of decentralisation depends on the fact that where the centre of interest is, there must the direct control be placed. Interest is local, and the direct control must be local too. The perfect example of this is in the case of the undergraduate societies. They form complete units, and for practical purposes it would be quite possible for the societies to be entirely separate, collecting separate and even dissimilar fees. There would certainly be no decline of student spirit. The probable result would be an intensified faculty spirit instead of a larger University spirit.

A situation such as this however, would weaken the individual society to an enormous extent. It would cut out altogether those organisations which call for concerted effort and large budgets.

The ideal position is, evidently, between a complete centralised control, and a split and weakened organisation wherein each society stands alone. That position, at the present time, is pretty well the condition that we have at McGill at the present time.

The control of the Council in financial matters, or a restrictive control where matters affecting a larger group than are concerned in the particular society, is fully recognised. This constitutes the centralised control.

The new tendency is that of endeavouring

THEATRES

McGill's Theatre

With this final issue of the Daily and last edition of the Theatre column it is but fitting that we should briefly comment on what has been, without a doubt, the most successful and progressive season McGill has witnessed in its activities of the theatre during the past few years. In order:

The Players' Club has advanced from one of the smaller to one of the major campus activities. With clever work in "The Watched Pot" and the "Insect Play" they definitely turned the corner, and set themselves on the course towards the production of better—more worthwhile—plays, presented with due regard to certain things which in former years had to be neglected, mainly the important question of adequate staging and lighting, and also the equally important matter of proper business management and publicity. At the risk of becoming unduly personal, I should like to here record that this decided advancement is largely due to the untiring efforts and enthusiasm of the retiring President, Leon Shelly. He has laid the foundations of what may in time become the leading campus club. The Club has now become one really worth belonging to, and the large turnout last fall was amply proof of this. Next year, under a good executive, adopting a progressive policy, the club should be able to present more plays, for more nights (the four nights for the "Insect Play" was a record in itself), for the training of the larger membership which is sure to be there.

For the club, the problem of adequate and proper directors is probably the most pressing one. The goal towards which they must work is to training directors and stage technicians, as well as actors. Up to the present this has of course been impossible, but there are indications that in another year or two good talent will be available within the club to take care of these departments.

About the Revue opinion is somewhat divided; some claim that it was not noticeably superior to those of other years; personally I feel that it marked a distinct step forward in Revues, at least those of the past four years. The music was better than that of many professional musical shows—and remember that those you are in Montreal are the few real hits that emerge each season—while the dancing was excellent, thanks to long hours of work by the girls and the direction of Allan Murray. The skits were not as feeble as those of former years—that is not saying much, but it is something—and while the staging was not elaborate, due largely to financial considerations, it was by no means poor.

In spite of this, however, it is no secret that there is grave doubt of the continuance of the Revue. The chief reason is the childish rowdiness displayed on the Saturday night, this destroys what little pleasure the cast gets out of the show, it ruins the production for those who come to hear it, and not a lot of semi-inebriated "students" in the second balcony. The various muscled thrown are a positive danger to the actors, and particularly to the dancers, and to the musicians.

There are those who go for the fun and noise, who belittle the evil effects. They clamor for a rowdy theatre night as of old. This is all very well; if they want to enjoy themselves at the proper place and time no one will object, but the point is that the Revue is not now produced to provide an excuse for a binge. In fact, the idea of the establishment of the Revue, as such, was to get away from the old Theatre night idea and to attempt to produce a more or less worthwhile musical show. It will be regrettable if the Saturday night rowdiness forces the abandonment of our original McGill show.

Another point is the active faculty opposition to the Revue, particularly as regards the participation of the girls. Just what particular objection is in this direction is rather difficult to see and the action seems rather arbitrary and unjustifiable on the part of the authorities. There is the general objection of the large amount of time taken up, which is true up to a point; it applies, however, to several other organizations. As a matter of fact, the very fact that the Revue is not a permanent organization aggravates the evil. Much valuable time is lost every year, first in the choosing of the executive by the Students' Executive Council, and then because of the relative inexperience of the executive.

The fact that the show is original and that it supplies a field lacking in our local theatre are two points in its favor; whether they will outweigh the objections is a serious problem.

And so we come to the Choral Society. Their productions are likewise improving, and "H.M.S. Pinafore" ranked with the best presentations of Gilbert and Sullivan that I have seen. This year they were very unfortunate in having to produce just before Christmas, notoriously a bad time in the theatre, and also to run up against the influenza epidemic. But beyond this, this wisdom of using a professional theatre, with its exorbitant charges, for such an essentially university piece of work seems doubtful to me. I am aware that the executive has considered this question carefully; the main objection seems to be the loss of prestige moving to a smaller place like the Moyse Hall, and possibly the loss of revenue. As far as the prestige goes—bosh! Look at the Players' Club. And as far as the revenue goes, the Choral Society has never made money, which they would certainly have far more chance of doing by playing twice as many nights in the smaller place. And incidentally, the acoustics of Moyse Hall are far better than those of most regular theatres.

Although perhaps a little out of the sphere of purely student activity we must mention the excellent work of the English Department in the field of the drama. In "Gammer Gurton's Needle" last November, and "London Assurance" two weeks ago, much very promising talent was brought to light. The productions showed minute attention to detail in all departments, that is lacking in practically all amateur shows. The Department, in addition, is providing excellent training for those interested in the various aspects of the theatre, and the number grows every year.

And so, briefly, our season at McGill has been a good one. We cannot say as much for the professional stage. Perhaps this has something to do with it. Whether or not, if a keen and awakened student interest have anything to do with it, next year should see an even better, and a still more active, season in McGill's theatre.

to interest the student through the society rather than through the central body, as mentioned above, where larger interests are concerned. This is the decentralised control.

We think that with a clear understanding of what is involved in this basis of operations of the societies on the campus, that the present conception is a most happy one.

NEXT WEEK AT THE ORPHEUM

Among the most successful writers of modern comedy, The Hattens, brother and sister, hold a prominent place. Their comedies have been delighting New York for years past, and they still continue to produce new plays at regular intervals. Such plays as "Fair and Warmer", "Upstairs and Down", and "Lombardi, Limited", have a perennial appeal. The last-named has been chosen by the Orpheum Players as their story for the coming week.

"Lombardi, Limited" is a diverting story of an Italian costumer, with a high-class clientele in New York city. He is a great sartorial artist, but hopeless as a business man, and incurably vulnerable where pretty faces are concerned. His chief assistant, Norah, is in love with him. He is affectionate towards all his feminine help, but he has conceived a grand passion for one of his clients, who is using it for her own personal gain.

As a result of his amorous affairs, his business is somewhat neglected, and slow-paying customers and hard-hearted creditors lead him eventually into trouble. Then the practical side of his employees asserts itself. Daisy, a smart little mannikin, enlists the aid of her admirer, Ricardo, a fellow-countryman of Tito, and he helps to meet the pressing debts. Tito's society idol deserts him, and he finds true love in the steady-fast loyalty of Norah, while Daisy marries Ricardo, so everybody is happy at the same time.

It is a smart play, with smart dialogue.

Prohibition Impractical

ports, the gradual trend has been towards more arrests for drunkenness. In United States, prohibition is a strain on the law, and affects youth very radically. Formerly, proper beverages were distilled, but with complete prohibition, poisonous drinks are prepared.

The experiment in the United States should be given a chance, because it is only 10 years old, according to Tough. Like many other government measures, it is disfavoured at the beginning, but is found to be for the common good, so it is accepted. As a result of an investigation made by "The Literary Digest" into the drinking situation in 200 leading American Universities, it has been found that students drink less than they used to. False Journalism has made many false impressions. The larger part of the population is a tranquil group and of no interest about which to write, but a few hundred who violate the law continually are given prominence in the press, and lead people to believe that there is more lawlessness than there really is.

R.V.C. Report On Active Season

Successful Year For Co-eds Reviewed

At the end of another two months, the members of the R.V.C. will be able to contemplate the work of the passing year with greater tranquillity than the present time, when the thought of approaching examinations tends to loom large in the minds of all. Be this as it may, the R.V.C. can look back on their part in the year's activities with few feelings of regret. The prestige of the women of the University has been increased to some extent during the past session. Perhaps the important privilege granted to the R.V.C. students was the right to work on the McGill Daily on an equality with the men-students. At a meeting of the Students' Council held on Feb. 21 this was made part of the Constitution of the McGill Daily. Henceforth women-students will benefit by the same training as that received by the men, and will carry on their work in the Daily office.

Women-students were also granted membership in the English Literature Society, and Miss Jane Howard was elected representative for R.V.C.

The R.V.C. scored a success in the Intercollegiate Debate, when Vera Shlakman and Dorothy J. Ross defeated the Varsity and Queens debaters. The subject was "Resolved that the open door policy of Immigration is conducive to the most desirable development of a country."

Several joint meetings of the men's and women's societies were included in the year's program, and were a great success. Two joint meetings of the R.V.C. Societies Francaise and the Cercle Francais took place, one at the R.V.C. and one at the Union. There were also two joint meetings of the R.V.C. House of Commons Club and the Historical, a combined meeting of the Delta Sigma Society and the Debating Union, and a combined meeting of the Men's and Women's shooting Clubs.

In the theatrical events of the year such as the production of the "Insect Play" the Red and White Revue, and "Pinafere", the efforts of the women-students met with well-merited success.

Says Physical Examination Is Needed By All

Present day has not changed greatly. Adults use drugs, perhaps more than actually needed. This is demonstrated by advertisements which may be seen all over. These say that you may eat what you like, as much as you like as long as you take such, and such a pill afterwards. The government has done much to protect the public in such that all patent medicines must be licensed by a certain department of the government.

Longer Life Now
Nowadays people live longer and enjoy better health than ever before. In 1875 the first Public Health Law was passed in England. The results of this are that there has been the elimination of certain diseases, while certain others have been checked to a certain degree. People realize the need for pure water and safe milk, though perhaps some cities such as Montreal are rather slow to acknowledge this.

Health is a condition that implies not only freedom from disease but the ability to do everything with 100 per cent vitality. Public Health must be supported not only by pecuniary help from the community but also with the help of the individual. Modern conveniences have helped a great deal. When bath tubs were not so plentiful in a certain city in the United States the use of them was prohibited unless accompanied by the doctor's certificate.

Periodic health examination is the most promising means by which personal health troubles may be combated. These examinations would be beneficial, for then disease would be detected in their early stages and so cured, for a disease is most easily cured in its primary stage. Individuals would then be studied and correct methods of living would be installed. Mental factors would also be improved and on the whole the community and the health of the community would be bettered.

Arts Elections

Elections in the Undergraduate Society of the Faculty of Arts will take place next Thursday, March 28th. The President calls for nominations, to be handed in to Bill Gentlemen's office by Monday at 12 o'clock noon, signed by fifteen of the Society.

The President and Treasurer must be nominated by the third year, the Secretary from the first year, and the Vice-President from the sophomore class.

PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY
There will be a meeting of the Philosophical Society on Tuesday May 28 at 8:00 p.m. in the Reading Room of the Arts Building.

Persistence And Unity Of Mind Is Topic Of Meeting

"The Unity and Persistence of Mind" will be the topic of an open discussion which will take place at the last meeting for the session of the Philosophical Society on Tuesday, March 26, at 8 o'clock in the Reading Room of the Arts Building. Roger W. Gough and Robert Pursley will lead the discussion, the former taking the first phase of the subject, and the latter the second. An executive for the session 1929-1930 will be elected.

All the meetings of the Philosophical Society for this session have been exceptionally well attended, doubtless due to the high quality of the subjects dealt with by the different speakers. There is every reason to believe that this meeting will be of as high a calibre as previous meetings.

The executive extend a warm welcome to all students who wish to attend.

partment. Upon the resignation of Robert W. Jones in the fall of 1928 he was appointed to the sports editorship and in 1929 he contributed in this office and also occupied a position on the managing board. Early in the current session Matthams resigned his position as sports editor to take charge of the features sections of the Daily. Matthams, was born in England and has played on intercollegiate championship water polo teams, been a member of the intercollegiate swimming team and has represented the Faculty of Arts on the Students' Executive Council.

McLeod, who succeeds George Brown as managing editor has also four years experience on the Daily. He served two years as reporter and was for two years a member of the associate board. In 1927-28 he acted in the capacity of night editor and during the current session has handled the Daily's exchange news. During the current session MacLeod was also manager of the Interfaculty League.

Paterson, the Daily's new sports editor in succession to L.S.B. Shapiro is another man with four years' undergraduate journalistic experience. He joined the staff of the Daily in his freshman year and his junior year was appointed to the board of associate editors, serving as night editor for one year and performing special duties as well as desk work during the current session. Paterson was assistant football manager during 1926-27, and was this year manager of the championship football team. He has been a member of the Scarlet Key Society and this year was elected by acclamation as one of the student representatives on the Athletic Board of Control.

Carroll, newly appointed news editor has been a member of the Daily staff for a period of three years. During the course of his second year on the staff he was elevated to the board of associate editors of which he is at present a member. Carroll has been prominent in debating circles, the book exchange, and has represented the Faculty of Arts on the Students' Executive Council.

The complete board of the Daily will complete the above-mentioned, members of the present board of associate editors will be returning next year and the following, whose appointment was announced at the recent annual banquet of the staff: Margaret Stockton, M. Bourne, H. Reid, H. Shapiro, M. Aronovitch and W. Barclay.

18th century it provoked Addison to draw up a list of slang words in order to fix the standard of English. In this list he included "mob", "apple", and "fizz". Yet "mob" was accepted today as a proper word to use, while the other two words had passed out of the language. The truth was that the language was not fixed by lexicographers or grammarians, but by the common people. In our own day the common people had employed the word "stunt" and it had been found necessary to express a certain idea. Those who deplored the use of slang should realize that the slang terms most often used quickly disappeared, for they became obsolete. They should have as much confidence in the future of the language as its past development had already justified.

Men should observe good usage since too much slang offended its hearers. It was not wise to wander too far from the accepted paths for if we wished to make ourselves understood, we must employ language which our hearers could appreciate. In conclusion the speaker urged his audience to pay attention to the past development of words indicated in a good dictionary, and to their present development which illustrates, among others, were producing. By this means we would not become lax in our use of language but we would acquire the Christian virtue of humility.

Antipodeans Will Visit Here

Col. Bovey To Address Party On Canada

One hundred and fifty Australian high school boys who are touring the continent, will arrive in Montreal on Good Friday, March 29th and remain till April 3rd. Organizations connected with McGill have agreed to provide accommodation for twenty-five of them.

The boys are from collegiate institutes in Australia and each one pays a large share of his expenses on the trip.

Arriving at the Bonaventure Station on Good Friday they will parade to the Mount Royal Hotel where a free breakfast will be provided for them. The Hotel will also put a salon at their disposal.

On Saturday morning they will be conducted through the Angus Shops with a luncheon included. On Easter Sunday, there will be a church parade and the Catholic boys among them will attend St. Patrick's Cathedral. They will spend the whole day of April 2nd touring the city.

Various fraternities and the McGill Women's Union are to look after the twenty-five assigned to McGill. On Saturday morning, Colonel Bovey will address the party in Moyse Hall, on "Canada" with slides and films.

a reply from Ceylon accepting the office, providing that he is able to return to college in the fall. The whole state was unanimously adopted by the meeting.

In speaking to the students, Dr. Hough centred his remarks around the desirability of serious intellectual study in a university. The college, he said, should be a place of mental activity primarily, even though this definition may rule out a lot of the students. He was aware that his definition was rather daring. He hoped that such an organization as the S.C.A. might be instrumental in bringing the emphasis to bear on honest learning.

"Knowledge brings fruition only when we are willing to be hurt for it," declared Dr. Hough. The delinquent group remains undisciplined and complacent, but another group may be so earnest in its pursuit of truth

SAFETY FIRST I

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

Most, if not all, of the hundreds of students of McGill University must have realized the danger that exists at many hours of the day in crossing Sherbrooke St. at the Roddick Memorial Gates. It seems to me that the time has come when some means of protection should be provided to ensure the safety of pedestrians at this point. My suggestion, sir, is that the Students' Executive Council, directly themselves or indirectly by making a recommendation to the Corporation, take steps to have that civic department regulating traffic in the city of Montreal establish a "refuge zone" or "safety island" in the middle of Sherbrooke St. in front of Strathcona Hall.

I do not wish to be a "calamity howler", sir—on the contrary, it is solely for the prevention of serious, possibly fatal, and needless accidents that this suggestion is humbly tendered.

Yours truly,
Safety First.

to shake the whole campus. His great fear was that all those present would develop as the years went by into commonplace people with a dull gray outlook in place of their former pure white ideals and their view of the things they attacked as jet black.

The speaker concluded by urging his listeners to make their rarest mood their dominant mood. He confessed that he was terribly jealous of the youth of students and certainly would make the most of a student's opportunity for acquiring knowledge and learning if he could but return to his youth.

Among those present as guests were Rev. and Mrs. Errol Amaron, Mr. A. O. Dawson, Mr. E. C. Woodley and Mrs. Chuck Stewart. After the meeting motion pictures taken at Elgin House two years ago were shown.

Besides Martyn Estall, those on next year's Board will be, Robb MacDonald, R. Douglas Smith, J. S. Smit, Gerald Hunter, Fred, Poland, Ewart Reid, John G. McNaughton, Jesse King, Art Watier, David Tough, Alfred Cooper, S. L. Bates.

M.V.S.A. EXECUTIVE
There will be an executive meeting on Wednesday, March 21 at 1 p.m. in the R.V.C. Common Room.

Dr. J. A. Lapp At People's Forum

Will Speak On "What's Wrong With The Catholic"

Dr. John A. Lapp will be the speaker at the meeting of the People's Forum on Sunday next when he will hold forth on the subject "What's Wrong With the Catholic?" The recent controversy in America over a man's duty to his church, and to his State will be brought to mind by this topic.

Besides being the author of many important books on citizenship, economics, justice and law, Dr. Lapp is the compiler of many United States federal laws, rules and regulations. He has edited "Nation's Health," "The National Municipal Review," and "The American Political Science Review." He was appointed by President Wilson to head the Vocational Educational Commission which framed the laws under which the present vocational education of the entire republic has been developed. Only recently he resigned from the directorship of the National Catholic Welfare Conference of Social Work, and Professor of Sociology at Marquette University.

The usual half-hour organ recital will precede the meeting on Sunday.

Approve Change Cafeteria Plan

Losses in the Union were less than last year, the losses probably amounting to about $200 for the Union and $200 or $300 for the cafeteria. It was pointed out that the deficit was smaller than that of last year because the expensive repairs that were borne by last years executive were not encountered this year. Due to the condition in which last years committees left the Union there were few things necessary to do. The staff of the Union was also reduced to a certain extent.

Other matters concerning athletic awards were left over for further investigation.

Track Season To Close With Indoor Meet

Fall Season To Open In Middle Of September

SUMMER ACTIVITIES

The indoor meet at the Forum on April 15th will bring to a close the activities of the McGill Track Club for the 1928-29 season. At this meet it is expected that a round dozen of the members of the club will get into action against the selected group of American and Canadian stars who are being specially imported for the occasion. The more distinguished members of this group of visitors will include Percy Williams, Jack Elder, Phil Edwards, Jimmy Hall, and the New York University relay team.

Interest in this meet, insofar as McGill is concerned will centre chiefly in the relay team. Just who will trade strides with the New Yorkers is not yet definitely known, but it is expected that Normie Smythe and Howie Baker will form the nucleus of the quartet. Hands, the man who brought the crowd to its feet when he picked up twenty yards to win by a scant foot from Mitchell of Varsity in the intercollegiate relay last fall, has definitely announced that he cannot spare the time in which to train for the Forum meet.

The 60 yards dash with Elder and Williams both trying to set new records will be the best event on the program. Smythe and Fraser will probably carry the red and white in this event. Drew, the man who clipped three fifths of a second off the Canadian intercollegiate relay last fall expects to set up a new record in the 60 yards hurdles.

It is expected that the Stadium will be open for outdoor track shortly after the indoor meet takes place at the Forum. Coach Van Wagner urges every track aspirant to spend as much time at the Stadium as he can possibly afford, because it has been found in the past that nothing is so beneficial in the short autumn season as a good ground work of condition built on this Spring training. The Coach will be at the track nearly every day from the time that the snow disappears until about the first of June 1st. Anyone who has any desire to run or to participate in field athletics or merely to get in some exercise has only to speak to the coach in order to be guided into the field best suited to his natural aptitudes.

The fall season will start about the middle of September, probably on the same day that the first football practices are called. The intercollegiate meet will be held next year in Toronto and it is hoped that the Bronze Sprinter, emblematic of the championship, will not have to be removed from the Union trophy case and shipped to Toronto.

When interviewed yesterday Coach Van Wagner expressed the hope that all prospective track men would report at the Stadium in good physical condition. As a means to this end he suggested that all track men should get into every meet being held in the part of the country where they may happen to be spending the summer. If it is impossible for the candidate to get in any competitive practice, he should begin to do a little running about the middle of August. The distance men can get out and plod along the roads, while the sprinters and the field men can confine themselves to some light work-outs in the branch of athletics in which they are interested.

Coach Van Wagner hopes to be greeted by a large group of track men in fairly good condition and rabbin' to go when he returns from his vacation in the middle of September.

Chess Exhibition

Garelick Wins Nearly All Games
Losing One To Garmaise

Alec. Garelick a graduate of Arts '27 and a member of the En Passant Chess Club gave an interesting exhibition of simultaneous chess play at the Union yesterday against the members of the McGill Chess Club. He succeeded in winning all but one of his games losing a game to Garmaise for the first time in five years. Some of the best games follow: Garmaise accepted the Evans Gambit which Garelick offered him and a very close game followed. He was unable to keep the 2 pawns which the opening gave him and evading a strong attack finally queened a pawn and forced his opponent to resign. This game was the feature of the afternoon.

Weiner defended the Two Knights Game. He retained the pawn and eventually gained the exchange, but Garelick's steady play soon forced him into error and finally lost the Knight and the game.

In an interesting position, Dr. Williams made an unsound sacrifice and was soon crushed by his adversary. A much larger audience than expected was present and evinced keen interest in the proceedings.

The executive are highly pleased with the success of today's exhibition and extend their thanks to Mr. Garelick for his courtesy in giving the display.

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS

With L. S. B. Shapiro

SCHLAFEN SIE WOHL, KINDER

There is no catch in my throat, nor indeed is there a tear in my eyes as I type out these last few remarks that serve to fill out a session of service as sports editor of this McGill Daily. There might well have been physical evidence of the solemnity of the occasion as these last lines are written, but I have been saved the full remorse of the occasion by the fact that the final examination schedule was posted the other day. It seems that sports editors too, have examinations to write, so let me assure my palpitating public that I have been looking forward to the day when I could help clamp down the cover of the Daily for the session of 1928-29 and turn my attention from swimming to psychology, and from hockey—alas—to history.

And so it comes to pass that only in a world such as ours, in a university like McGill and in a newspaper such as the Daily, could a young unblinking student of 21 turn to look with patriarchal eyes on the activity of a session's sport. It is remarkable how much this final ending business adds to the effectiveness of a story. It gives me a sobriety of thought, a majesty of opinion that I never have, and probably never will, possess.

A TRANSITION YEAR

Important as the session may be in our estimation, it is with regret that my patriarchal eye, looking ahead several years tells me that 1928-29 will not be remembered. It is a transition year. It will cut no greater figure in the history of McGill sport than does the year 1923 in history. It will sink into oblivion in the light of the great changes to take place in the near future. And this in the face of the first football title in 9 years.

There are several distinct indications that point in this direction. The entrance of Western into the football union; the impending adoption of the inside pass; the tremendous plan of expansion in the matter of gymnasia for McGill; the "bow" that will take the place of the present stands at the stadium; the increased interest in intra-mural sport; all these factors go to show that we are entering a period that can only be described as "big."

Big? Yes, better? Well, maybe.

ALWAYS CHANGING—NEVER CHANGED

It does not fall to every sports editor to witness the winning of the intercollegiate football championship. Even the Toronto papers will admit that. Nor does it occur every year that the schedule of the Canadian intercollegiate hockey league consists of two games, played before a sprinkling of people who still take pleasure in seeing two teams play a game for the fun and glory they get out of it. And so as we cast an inquisitive eye over the whole year's activity, we note the good, the bad, the indifferent, jumbled into a heap that may be recognized as that old, old friend—average session. Nothing startling, nothing spectacular—but who asks more than an average year?

A sparkling note was sounded this year in the lyre of intra-mural sport. Figures recently released indicate that the average student is beginning to wake up to the fact that he is passing up something irretrievable in ignoring interclass teams. It is in this direction that the greatest advance can be made in the matter of McGill sport.

AND FINALLY, SIRs

As a final act of grace I should like to pass to my worthy successor John Ross Paterson, who I am given to understand is about to become a student-in-law, the following words of advice, namely and to wit:

Remember always, that your first duty is to your newspaper and to your readers.

Always to present to them the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

Never to allow personal bias to interfere with an honest and straightforward presentation of the news.

To weigh and measure your news carefully so as to give the greater prominence to stories that have an interest for the greatest number of students.

To place all your strength and vigor behind the presentation of your personal views, certain first that those views are in the best interests of this University.

Never to cringe, always to stand four square behind Old McGill

Science Baseball Team Won 17-13

Defeated Commerce In Staging Comeback

Science staged a come back in baseball circles today when they defeated a Commerce nine by the score of 17-13. The plumbies despite the fact that they were playing with eight men to their opponents eleven took the lead early in the game and were never again in danger.

The outstanding feature of the game was Crain's pitching, while Church did heroic work for the Commerce.

Batteries: Science, Crain and Klein. Commerce, Talpis, Church and Horn.

Rowing Executive To Meet Monday

Meeting In Music Room At Five

A meeting of prime importance to all those who have taken a keen interest in Rowing in the last two months will take place on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Music Room of the Union, when the officers for the coming year are to be elected.

Since there is a strong possibility of one of the new men, who is certain of going out to the Lakeside club being made a member of the executive, all the men who have been turning out for the first time this year are particularly asked to be present. This will also afford them a chance to get acquainted with some of the men who have helped to make the McGill Rowing Club in the past, and it will also give them an opportunity of hearing short talks from the Coach, and Col. Bovey, and Major Forbes, who have promised to be present.

A very good report is anticipated from the outgoing President both on the activities of last year, and on the anticipations for the coming year. The turnout to date has been excellent, and with a continuance of this good work on the part of the men who are interested, it is expected that a very good season can be looked to before the end of Canadian rowing in August.

It is also announced for this, the last issue of the Daily, that the quarters at the Field House will be open right on until the examinations, so that every member is expected to keep right on his toes until the open water season opens in the middle of May. There is an added advantage in going to the stadium, in that very shortly the track will be open for use and those who turn out for rowing will be able to obtain all the advantages which the stadium has to offer.

The coach will be in attendance as usual for the next month between three and six o'clock every afternoon.

Interclass Baseball

Law will play Science at 5:30 today in the M.H.S. gym.

Stadium To Remain Open All Summer

The Molson Stadium will be open for outdoor track practices as soon as the ice has disappeared. All track men are urged to turn out and get in some spring training.

The Stadium will remain open all summer for the benefit of those who make their headquarters in the city. Anyone wishing to take advantage of this opportunity of getting in some exercise is quite welcome to do so. No experience is necessary. Just get out on the cinder path and run. Or if the idea of running in hot weather seems out of the question, go up and lie around on the grass and collect a nice coat of tan. USE THE STADIUM.

during the spring practice session, it was learned yesterday from W. J. Bingham '16, Director of Athletics. Shaughnessy will arrive from Canada in a few days and will assist Horween in developing backfield material to succeed Captain A. E. French '29 and David Guarnaccia '29. Spring came yesterday....the newspapers said so. Of course you bought a lot of new finery to mark the occasion which means you must economize elsewhere. The best way to do this is use Standard Cabs, because they cost so much less than any other.

Then too, the fine raiment won't look so fine if displayed in a dilapidated hack. So you will ride in a Standard to assure yourself of the proper chic atmosphere.

Spring usually manifests itself in a certain lassitude.....a disinclination to effortan overwhelming desire for comfort.

To gratify this urge you must have a Standard of course. And it takes no more effort to say or dial Uptown 6303.

The Banjo Club Has

Chosen Its Executive For Next Year Is Claim

A most successful season was reported by the Banjo Club at their last meeting this season.

After a great deal of discussion about the last year and that to come the officers of the club as a whole elected the members for the coming season.

An informal speech was given on the topic, "Is the Banjo Club a Success," the unanimous answer was "Yes." This shows the popularity of the club, stated the president to a "Daily" reporter at a late hour last night.

According to the election the officers for next year are: Pres. Palmer Savage; Vice-pres. John Madler; Business manager, Addie Armstrong; Sec.-Treas. David MacKenzie.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by the members of the retiring board.

BORROWED INTELLIGENCE

In an apt metaphor Charles Lamb once said that literature should be used not as a crutch but as a walking-stick. If we learn nothing else in college we should at least learn to use other people's ideas as stimuli for formulating ideas of our own, and not as mental crutches to save the necessity of thinking at all.

Kollege Fables

Once upon a time there was a Stude who attended An Institution of Higher Learning. He was a good Stude, but he suffered greatly under the severe misapprehension that he was a Kollege Boy.

So one day when the sun was shining and the birds were going "tweet-tweet," and somewhere a Poet was trying to rime "Spring" with "loving" our Stude meets an old friend of his.

"Hi, boy, whitcha doin' now?"
"Oh, I'm a Kollege Boy!"
"Fine! Fraternity man?"
"No, that is, not yet."
"Carry a flask, eh?"
"No."
"Tet?"
"No." The Centigrade temperature of our Stude was rising... rising...

"Surely, then, you have a roadster, a Ford roadster, at least?"
"No, but I'm getting one," our Stude tried to lie, forgetting all the Ethics he ever learned in good Old Delaware.

"I guess you ain't got no raccoon, either?"
"No—, but—"
"What, no raccoon? Gwan, man you ain't no Kollege Boy! You're only a univolsity stodeent!"
